(See the similar situation of the Schlofiruine Dippach, Kunstdenkmaler SchioB von Unterfranken, Heft V, B.-A Hofheim, page 42.) The Bering forms a quite descriptive-angular terrace, which is enclosed from the west by a briquette and surrounded by a wall (GrundriC Fig. - Views Figure 17 and 18.)

The Schlofi, which stands in the middle of the terrace, is divided into two square, tower-like buildings, which a narrower cross-hedgehog on the east side connects, so that towards the west an enclosing yard arises. Originally this courtyard was closed by a connecting wall in the western escape; the traces of the same are preserved at Siidfliigel in a thickness of 1,50 m; also there a walled round-arched driveway.
